PROGRAM NOTES

Canzoni d'Amore (Songs of Love) is a medley of three classic Italian love songs.

The first is "Serenata" by Enrico Toselli (1883-1926). Toselli, who was born in Florence, was a brilliant concert pianist whose growing fame was eclipsed by a scandalous affair, marriage, and divorce to the Archduchess Louise of Austria-Tuscany. "Serenata," his most famous composition, is a sentimental song about regret over lost love.

"Caro Mio Ben" is an 18th century Italian art song. Authorship is generally credited to Guiseppe Giordani (1744-1798) although there is speculation that the song may have been penned by his older brother Tommaso. Both brothers were born in Naples to a musical family. "Caro Mio Ben" is an aria which doesn't seem to have been written for any specific opera. Its subject matter, like that of "Serenata," is longing for lost love.

The final song in the medley, "Torna a Surriento," was composed in 1902 by Ernesto de Curtis (1875-1937). One of the best examples of Neapolitan song, "Torna a Surriento," has been recorded by multiple artists as diverse as Frank Sinatra, Elvis Presley, and Luciano Pavarotti. A version with English lyrics is titled "Come Back To Sorrento".

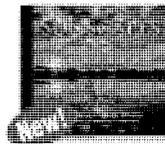

PERFORMANCE NOTES

In an instrumental performance of these vocal pieces emphasis should rightly be placed on playing with a smooth, legato, song-like style. The melodies should always be prominent and need not be performed in strict tempo. The many ritardandi and fermati are meant to emulate the vocalist's frequent use of rubato. The director should feel free to use his/her own interpretation, always in the service of adding an espressivo quality to these beautiful melodies.

I hope you enjoy Canzoni d' Amore.
